

Herjavec Group Buys Sysec

Written by Marco Attard
06 February 2015

Canadian managed security services provider Herjavec Group buys British security vendor Sysec for an unspecified sum, part of a 3-year $250 million expansion plan into European markets.

Sysec is 2014 McAfee EMEA Accredited Certified Engineer (ACE) partner of the year, and is said to have over 200 enterprise clients across the UK and Europe.

“The work we do in enabling enterprises to be more secure has never had a greater focus on a global scale,” Herjavec Group CEO Robert Herjavec says. “I am so pleased to embark on our expansion into Europe and welcome the Sysec team to Herjavec Group.”

Following acquisition the Sysec Reading, UK offices will serve as Herjavec Group's European HQ. The company will be rebranded as Herjavec Group, and expand its product and service offerings throughout European markets. Sysec managing director Chris Pikes remains on board to lead the European expansion.

As part of its "follow-the-sun" technical support structure Herjavec Group is also building a security operations centre in London to complement its existing centers in Toronto and Las Vegas.

Go Herjavec Group Expands into Europe with Acquisition of Sysec