Pan-European IT and technology distributor EET Group announces Søren Drewsen as CEO. He succeeds John Thomas, who steps down after a 20-year tenure in order to "spend more time with his family."

Thomas will remain at EET Group as a member of the board, as well as shareholder along majority owner FSN Capital. His successor, Søren Drewsen, joins EET Group from a position as VP and group managing director and head of N. Europe at UK-based roofing systems manufacturer Icopal/BMI Group. He holds a Master of Science and Bachelor degrees in both Marketing and Organisation from Copenhagen Business School.

"Søren Drewsen has comprehensive executive management experience from different ownership structures in multinational operations and industries, and I'm confident that Søren Drewsen is the right profile to execute on our strategy of becoming the market leader within each of our seven defined business areas on a pan-European scale," the EET board says.
